

Davis Life Concepts for Autism Workshop: A pathway to full participation in life

A workshop specifically created for parents, caregivers & support persons of those with ASD and individuals on the autism spectrum who are looking for a self-development program.

Course: Davis Life Concepts for Autism Workshop (DLCA)
Description: An introductory course to the Davis Autism Approach®
Aim: To provide the opportunity to gain sufficient knowledge and skills to actively support a person with autism working through the Davis Autism Approach® Program.
Course level: Introductory – level 1	Course Length: 5 days - 30 hours
Pre-requisites: Read the book Autism and the Seeds of Change – By Abigail Marshall and Ronald D. Davis
Who should attend: Parents, family members and support persons of an individual on the autism spectrum, adult autistic individuals who are looking for a self-development program, or anyone who is interested in helping a person with autism through the Davis Autism Approach®.

Learning Outcomes:

Upon completion of the workshop you will:

- Demonstrate an understanding behind the rationale for the program and how it helps those with autism participate more fully in life.
- Identify key life concepts and why they are best explored in a specific sequence.
- Describe and reflect on the technique of Concept Mastery and gain experience on how to guide another or self through this process.
- Explore the mastery procedure with the first set of concepts described in the book, Autism and the Seeds of Change.
- Gain experience of how to explore these concepts in the environment and the value of integrating them into everyday life.
- Demonstrate the techniques needed to guide another through the use of the “Davis focusing tools”.
- Create a plan of how to implement an individualised program for the person you are supporting or for yourself.
